Research Manager Intensive Training

Face-to-face 3-day training courses aiming to provide research managers at all levels with intense and encouraging training, supporting them in dealing with the entire spectrum of challenges that RMs experience.

All research managers are welcome, whether working at a university, college, research institute, research funder, government agency, or any type of research performing or funding organization.

RMIT-1: New in the RM profession

The first course in the RMIT program is aimed at individuals who are new to the Research Management profession. This training course will provide a solid introduction to the fundamentals of research management.

RMIT-2: Mastering research management

Individuals with a few years' experience are the target group for the second RMIT course. This course explores challenges when a research manager have settled into the role, with a strong focus on each individual's experience.

RMIT-3: RM crossroads: expert, manager, leader

The advanced RM career can lead to roles as experts, managers, or leaders. What are the implications of the different options, and how should you as an individual think and act at this crossroad? This is the theme for the third RMIT course.

RMIT-4: Experienced RM leader, expert cat herder

Navigating the intricate and intensely political landscape of institutional leadership is challenging. RMIT-4 offers peer-to-peer exchange and expert experience to explore the unique challenges of top-level leadership for RMs.

RMIT applies the HACKATHON concept: ▶ In RMIT hackathons, research managers work together... ▶ ...to resolve common and individual challenges... ▶ ...enhancing deep insight, skill development, and satisfaction

Read more: https://www.research-lighthouse.com/rmit-program